out of date. I want to get updated one, which one should I use..if we use 2013 can we use it to run 2013 simulation? A: Which one? Which is the best for you? Only you and your uses will be able to tell which is right for your situation. Assuming the answer is xforce, here is some information on how xforce works with Autodesk products. From Autodesk.com: Inventor offers an extendable bridge between Design and Simulation. The bridge seamlessly integrates into the Inventor workflow. It acts as the middleman between Design and Simulation while allowing the user to interact with either of the two applications. The bridge connects to a Design.NET based Autodesk Simulation Manager product. The bridge handles simple geometry and allows the user to interact with the Design and Simulation applications to perform simulation, virtual prototyping and .NET scripting. The Autodesk Inventor Design Software Runtime environment is required. The output of the analysis performed by the bridge is compatible with the outputs of standard Inventor simulation. This compatibility means that Inventor Design Rules, Annotative surfaces, and project context are preserved. xforce supports the following products: Autodesk® Inventor® 2009, 2010 Autodesk® Inventor® 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017 Autodesk® Inventor® 2012 Design Review Autodesk® Inventor® 2012 Design Review Ultimate Autodesk® Inventor® 2012 Design Review Ultimate 2012 R2 Autodesk® Inventor® 2012 Design Review Ultimate 2013 Autodesk® Inventor® 2013, 2014 Autodesk® Inventor® 2013 2010, 2014, 2015 Autodesk® Inventor® 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018 Autodesk® Inventor® 2017 2017 R2 Autodesk® Inventor® 2018 Architecture 2021 Autodesk® Inventor® Design Review 2013 R2 Autodesk® Inventor® Design Review 2013 Ultimate Autodesk® Inventor® 2015 R2 Ultimate Autodesk® Inventor® 2017 Ultimate Autodesk® Inventor® 2013 Ultimate Autodesk® Inventor® 2014 Ultimate Autodesk® Invent
